

Introduction to Museum Box

Enter this URL into your Internet Explorer address box: <http://museumbbox.e2bn.org/>

Once on the homepage you will see:

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Museum Box website. At the top, the title "MUSEUM BOX" is displayed in large, white, block letters. Below the title, there are four framed images: a window, a mobile phone, a wooden box, and a pair of glasses. Underneath these images are the navigation links "Home", "About", "Cases", and "Case Studi". A blue callout box with the text "Click here to see more information about Museum Box" has an arrow pointing to the "About" link. Below the navigation links, a welcome message reads: "Welcome to Museum Box, This site provides the tools for you to build up an argument or description of an event, person or historical period by placing items in a virtual box. What items, for example, would you put in a box to describe your life; the life of a Victorian Servant or Roman soldier; or to show that slavery was wrong and unnecessary? You can display anything from a text file to a movie. You can also view and comment on the museum boxes submitted by others. More...". To the right of this text, a blue callout box with the text "Some basics of what you can do with your Museum Box" has an arrow pointing to the "More..." link. Below the welcome message, the section "Our inspiration" is titled. It contains two entries. The first entry is for "Thomas Clarkson", featuring a small portrait of him and the text: "The project was inspired by the anti-slavery campaigner - Thomas Clarkson, who did exactly as described above." The second entry is for "Thomas Clarkson's Box", featuring a small image of a wooden box and the text: "He carried around a box of items (ranging from African produce to diagrams of transportation ships) to illustrate his arguments during his campaign." To the right of this section, a blue callout box with the text "The idea behind Museum Box" has an arrow pointing to the "Thomas Clarkson's Box" entry.
